

ABSTRACT

The present invention is a system and method for matching employers with employees by way of the Internet using standardized formats for inputting qualifications and desired abilities, comparing the qualifications and abilities of employees with those wanted by an employer, scoring the comparison and notifying the employer and/or employee of a match if their qualifications and abilities match those desired by the employer.